

Once upon a time, the king went on a journey.
Going by the garden. Everybody in front of him would give him the way. Only one was standing in the middle of the way. The way to the King! But he was just standing and looking. ~~looking~~ Hey! Give me the way! I'm the king! The king couldn't take it anymore! I'm the king! said the person. You?
Said the king. Yes, the person also got confused.
Walking, across each other and looking at each other Mom always told the king, that ~~that~~ everything can be solved by negotiations, without fights.
So he decided that it's this case. But, do you have a certificate? made up the first king. No!
Do you? I have my royal entourage. Five people.
So what! I have with me twelve royal entourage and a little dog, Bark! - assured the dog. The conversation went to a dead end. Do you know the royal song? - asked the first king. Obviously I know it. King our more ~~are~~ bee, and birds make nests in his beard. Good job! Nice song,- praised the first king. Only the words are a bit different. Also the melody. We have a king, we are so lucky. With him in the castle it's calm, bright.
It's still good, - thinking said the other king.
Let's sing together. So, they sang. Each their version. The royal entourage picked up the song.
Mentally it turned out. Does it happen that there are two kings? asked the counter king, when they finished.

Looks like it is not, sighed the first king, Sting!

So, the first king drew with a sock of the royal boot to hell on the sand. Let me be the king until here, then you. But, here the trumpets sounded and on the road of the garden appeared another person. The way to the king! shouted the person.

Well, hello! said the first king and the second as well. There are too many kings here!

This is how the expression "The third is extra" appeared.